

The Elusive Artistry of Andreas Durst

To approach wine as a form of fine art, one could consider its elements akin to those of a photograph. Both are physical translations of a moment, unique combinations of time + place + perspective. Not always, but sometimes, they alchemize into something singular.

From barely a hectare in a northern corner of the Pfalz, art photographer Andreas Durst is making tiny quantities of low-intervention wines with a captivating perspective. His bottled translations of limestone bedrock, 120-year-old vines, and native yeasts, conjure landscapes of perfume, depth and shadow. Acid bright as light leaks on a spool of film. Wine as art. There's no one, anywhere, doing it quite like this.

Salty Bone Dry Riesling that tastes like you made a straw out of a steel beam and used it to suck up a pile of pink himalayan salt and pineapple juice. Pair with Oysters!

durst 'grosser durst' pfalz, germany 2022 riesling (4oz) 16

Experience The Glory of Sylvaner. The Sylvaner revolution is alive and well in Germany - hop on board. Smells like creamy passionfruit curd and tastes like crushed rocks and spring vegetables.

Drink with Fried Chicken Torito.

durst, pfalz, germany 2021 sylvaner (4oz) 18

One of Earth's Most Singular Reds. This comes from the oldest Portugieser vines in the world - 2 rows planted in 1906. Portugieser is usually low quality swill, but Durst crafts the world's most exhilarating version. This wine stands alone atop Portugieser mountain. Sun aged blackberries, bitter alpine herbs, crushed cupid wings. Duck Wine!
